Villa Park wins "Project of the Year" award from public works association

VILLA PARK, IL—On January 25, 2018, the Village of Villa Park received the American Public Works Association (APWA) Suburban Branch Public Works Project of the Year for its work in the disaster or emergency construction/repair category of less than $5 million.

The award was bestowed for the Village's response to an emergency bridge repair on St. Charles Road over Salt Creek, following notice in August 2017 that the bridge rating had been lowered by the Illinois Department of Transportation (IDOT). With a 15-ton weight restriction taking immediate effect, the Village sprang into action to address this public safety concern and a potential traffic bottleneck.

"Our Public Works
Department should be congratulated for bringing all parties together on short notice in tackling this emergency situation," says

According to the APWA, the Public Works Project of the Year Award is designed to promote excellence in the management and administration of public works projects. "Our annual award program celebrates the best of what we do in Public Works," says Jeff Maczko, Awards Co-Chair for the APWA Suburban Branch. "This year's awards committee felt that the culmination of intergovernmental partnering, a unique use of the design-build contract, and the expedited timeframe in which the work was completed made the St. Charles Road Bridge Emergency Repair Project a true deserving recipient of the award."

The Village Board approved proceeding with a temporary repair of the St. Charles Road Bridge in September 2017. The Public Works Department then partnered with the engineering consulting firm V3 Companies to assemble a team in maintaining the 15-ton weight limit until the bridge is reconstructed. Emergency work included lane reconfigurations, support beam installations, re-routing of PACE buses, changeable message boards, and more.
